

Good Home Network

A growing hub for active learning and connection. Bringing together local authorities to share challenges, seek collective solutions and drive change to improve the quality of homes.

It absolutely has done what I would hope from a network which was enable us access to people with knowledge and experience, different ways of thinking.

The network certainly helped a great deal in decision-making, thinking and practical outputs.

133
individuals are members of the network

65
places represented in the network

20%
representation in local authorities

225
participants
at the Good Home Hub
Conference

The Good Home Network is a valued network that supports its members to:

1. Connect with others
2. Learn from each other and from experts
3. Build awareness and understanding of unsafe/poor-quality homes across England
4. Feel part of a developing collective voice for the sector

This gives members the tools to be ready to take action to improve the quality of homes

Activities

Online learning sessions

Self-directed visits

Informal online peer calls

Access to policymakers

Accessible and informative outputs

Members say:

80%: GHN meets or exceeds their expectations

90%: GHN helps build awareness and understanding of Good Home Hubs and Ageing Better's work

80%: GHN sessions and calls are likely to apply the learning to their work

It's good to see that we're moving ... to more advanced conversations now between partners.

Benefits for members

- 🏠 Sharing intelligence
- 🏠 Expanding knowledge base
- 🏠 Safe space to think and share
- 🏠 Collective voice for sector
- 🏠 Peer support
- 🏠 Peer review
- 🏠 Networking
- 🏠 Connection
- 🏠 Access to information

The Centre for Ageing Better hosts the Good Home Network in partnership with Foundations.

The network supports the Centre for Ageing Better's work to promote a system of local support agencies - Good Home Hubs - to provide trusted advice, information, access to financial products and grants.

For more information or to join please contact goodhomenetwork@ageing-better.org.uk

