How to use this document

On these pages is a list of questions you may want to ask in your community survey. However, the process of creating a community survey should involve working with stakeholders to understand what information is important to collect and what information you may already have elsewhere.

This survey should be used as a baseline; you may eliminate or add questions as needed, but we would encourage you to reflect the diversity of topics captured by the World Health Organisation Eight Domains as this survey does.

Please see our Good Practice document for more guidance on the community survey process – from how to write your own questions, to how to distribute the survey and analyse the data.

Include a cover sheet describing what the survey is, who is administering it, and how to fill out/return the form.

The next page of this document is an editable cover. Click on the relevant boxes to update the template name and administration details

Think about your local area and/or town centre when answering these questions. Many questions ask about 'access'- think about two things: whether something exists, and if so, whether you can get to it.

Please Indicate your answers by marking an 'X' in the box
